

Monarchs on a Mission Educator Workshop

Monarchs are fascinating creatures. From their fall migration totaling some 3,000 miles to their specific feeding and lifecycle requirements, Monarchs never fail to captivate the hearts and minds of teachers and students.

Preschool through second grade educators are invited to join Northern Prairies Land Trust and the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission as we immerse ourselves in the life and habits of the Monarch Butterfly. This workshop will focus on inquiry based lessons you can use inside your classroom as well as activities you can take outdoors.

After implementing any of the resources from the Monarchs on a Mission workshop into your classroom you will receive a caterpillar rearing cage to help you on your way to raising real monarchs in your classroom.

Participants will receive:

- Monarchs and More: An Inquiry and Arthropod Based Curriculum
- Monarch educational resources
- Inspiration and guidance to incorporate activities into your classroom

Who should attend?

- Pre-school to second grade educators and afterschool providers.

To register please e-mail your name, e-mail address, school or organization and the ages you teach to Jamie Bachmann.
